

Why very small particles are very soluble:

sites prone to dissolution dominate the surface area of small particles; they are a lesser proportion of the surface area of larger particles

Scale:
4 Å
□

